

Transportation

Living independently means knowing how to get around. Whether you walk, take the bus, train, bike, or drive. Knowing the routes and safety of the world around you makes a huge difference.

Maybe you've always dreamed of driving a car around. Maybe you like the convenience of public transportation. It's important to know that you have options, but make sure that how you choose to get around town fits into your lifestyle.

Right now I get around by: Check all that apply

- Walk
- Bike
- Bus
- Train
- Driving a Car
- Uber/Lyft
- Taxi
- Ride from Friends
- Ride from Parents or Family

Good things about my current transportation:

Bad things about my current transportation:

What I want to change about my transportation:

Things to consider if I want to change my transportation:

If I were to ride my bike, things to think about:

- Purchasing a bike
- Bike maintenance
- Bike safety (including helmet, and lights)
- Safe bike routes
- How long it will take to my destination
- An alternative in bad weather

If I were to take the bus/train, things to think about:

- Buying a T pass (monthly, weekly, or per ride)
- Knowing bus and train routes and times
- Safety on bus and train
- Dressing for bad weather
- Length of time to reach destination
- Phone apps to predict and update times

If I were to drive a car, things to think about:

- Pass driver license test
- Buy a car
- Yearly car inspection cost
- Car insurance
- Car maintenance
- Parking permits
- Paying for gas
- Driving in bad weather
- Ability to navigate/use navigation apps